Hey Erik – for #1, Yes, you only need to look at the pesticides comment for our subgroup.

For #2, it sounds like you're making a change to the comment(?). I think it's fine to just say you made a change, or color-code it so we know there was a change to the original comment.

Two clarifying questions.

1. Just want to confirm that when I'm looking at a letter from a Pesticides or Riparian perspective, I'm only double checking the Pesticides or Riparian comments. I should not be checking for accuracy and completeness on other codes, such as Forestry –General or Landslides etc.?
2. When making an accuracy correction, I'm just noting in a new column, "Erik's Notes", that I have made a language change. Enough to just say that 'I made a change here, replaced a word' – or, do you want to a copy of the text that was changed saved in the new column?

Pretty sure I've got it and the first 5 letters were straightforward, just making sure I'm on the right track.
